Description

The forgot password form has a minor XHTML validation problem when using the default template.

Both the label "for" attribute and the input ID are tied to `###FORGOT_EMAIL###` (as is the input "name" attribute"). This marker evaluates as `"tx_felogin_pi1[forgot_email]"`, but the brackets are not allowed in the ID or "for" attribute.

Changing the ID to forgot-email or something like that should clear up the issue, although it may introduce some small compatibility problems for people hooking CSS or Javascript onto the existing ID.

[BUGFIX] Validation problem in forgot and change password form

Label for attribute is invalid for XHTML. Changing it to a hard coded value solves the problem. In case custom styling or Javascript breaks the whole template can be replaced.
