Description
Currently <code><f:flashmessages /></code> renders the FlashMessages only by converting them into a string implicitly. That only returns the message Body of the respective FlashMessage. In order to render FlashMessages according to their type, the severity should be rendered into the flash message as CSS class. Besides the title of a message should be rendered, if specified.

[FEATURE] (ViewHelpers): Render FlashMessage title and severity

Currently the FlashMessages ViewHelper only renders the body of the respective Flash Messages.

This change modifies the ViewHelper in a backwards compatible way so that it outputs the message title if specified.

Additionally the severity (notice, warning, error, ok) is added to each list item.

Additionally free rendering foreach style is possible now.
