Description

In FunctionalTestCase.php the line `$this->securityContext->refreshTokens();` causes severe problems for Christopher Hlubek's tests that deal with security. That line was added in <https://review.typo3.org/9676> to fix #34466.

I tested without that line and indeed all functional security tests in FLOW3 still pass, if the exception expectation in MethodSecurityTest is again changed from AuthenticationRequiredException to AuthenticationRequiredException.

Christopher: how do your tests fail? Maybe you also have the same wrong expectation?

Christopher, we decided to submit that change and rather fix this (small) issue separately instead of further working on that huge stack of changes... so please give feedback :)

I'm debugging it right now. It seems that "`$this->disableAuthorization()`" doesn't do that with the fix for #34466 in place. Since no tokens are authenticated anymore, any code that needs authentication throws an AuthenticationRequiredException. So we need to authenticate a token here to disable authorization (sounds funny).

I'll try to create a functional test in FLOW3 that tests this behavior.

Christopher, could you check this again and answer Robert's question on the change in Gerrit?
