[[[BUGFIX]]] urlencode viewhelper accepts objects with __toString

This fixes a problem with the urlencode view helper. If you pass it an object with `__toString()` method – for example an `URI` object – it is returned as is. Now the view helper additionally checks for a `__toString()` method.

This change is breaking if you rely on the viewhelper to return values that are not a string or an object with `__toString`. The viewhelper will now throw an exception in this case.

Note: This is the same in other format viewhelpers as well, so should probably be changed there as well to be consistent.
