I guess either the gap should be filled with dark grey color or should be removed.

This highly depends on the browser rendering. On my system the "WEB" is properly aligned to the bottom border of the darker bar within the module area to the right:

(Unpatched)

you are right and it looks kind of broken to me. imo, either the gap between the logo and the menu is too big or there is some dark grey bar missing between the logo and the menu.

this is how it looked e.g. in TYPO3 4.7

There won't be a bar since the docheader is only relevant for the main section.
