[!!!][TASK] House of forms

This patch introduces a structural code refactoring to the FormEngine class and its related friend classes.

FormEngine used to call itself over and over again with itself and sub classes writing to public properties of FormEngine keeping a global state that is then magically merged to sometimes working output.

The patch introduces a tree approach with lots of small containers doing an encapsulated part of the rendering process and calling sub containers for inner details.

As main construct a "globalOptions" array is modified in containers and given down to sub containers (tree knots) or elements (leaves), while sub structures always return a defined array that is merged by the parent and accumulates the full result.

Goal is to have a better encapsulated code structure with better visible impact on changes done to this system.

The patch creates this main structure. There is still a lot of mess around and additional patches can further improve the overall situation with smaller changes.
