Description

The Github repository of the package phpwhois/idna-convert is somehow gone which makes every Composer installation of TYPO3 fail:

```

  Now trying to download from source

#1 - 2016-01-06 10:44 - Mathias Brodala

The repository at <https://github.com/phpWhois/idna-convert> has been restored by the author now. There are no releases in that repository anymore but Composer will simply fall back to cloning via Git to download the packages.

The author suggests switching to mso/idna-convert instead:

I haven't noticed that typo3 might depend on this package.

Let me check if I can restore this repository.

However the original packagist package provided by the author of library is mso/idna-convert. TYPO3 maintainers should change the name of the package I believe.

I've asked the author of that package to make a stable release. Sascha Egerer already did a source diff and there are no noteworthy changes which could be breaking.
