

forge.typo3.org - Feature #83327

Hint for new users on login form of forge.typo3.org

2017-12-14 14:36 - Stephan Großberndt

| | | | |
|--|---------------------|------------------------|------------|
| Status: | New | Start date: | 2017-12-14 |
| Priority: | Should have | Due date: | |
| Assignee: | Bastian Bringenberg | % Done: | 0% |
| Category: | | Estimated time: | 0.00 hour |
| Target version: | | | |
| Description | | | |
| Since the LDAP change new users trying to report a bug face a login form on forge.typo3.org without any hint how they can create an account, there is just a login/password form. A hint should be displayed here with a link to https://typo3.org/my-account/sign-up/ explaining the account has to be created there first to be able to login at forge.typo3.org | | | |

History

#1 - 2017-12-15 21:05 - Steffen Gebert

Hi Stefan,

nice idea, indeed. IIRC there should be a helpful error message on forge at least when the login fails.

However, there is no way that we can easily add messages to all of the *.typo3.org sub-sites. Honestly, isn't it kind of logical that you go to the parent site when there's no "Register" button available?

Steffen

#2 - 2017-12-20 17:47 - Susanne Moog

Hey Steffen,

no it's actually not ;) I just had to explain where to register multiple times, as people search for the TYPO3 issue tracker and then don't know how to register. Additionally, even on typo3.org the registration isn't the first thing you'd notice, so knowing that it should be there would already help.

#3 - 2017-12-21 06:45 - Steffen Gebert

Oh.. these users.. can't we just get rid of them? ;-)

So let's leave that ticket here and ask Sascha to implement such message.

#4 - 2019-05-22 09:52 - Bastian Bringenberg

- Assignee set to Bastian Bringenberg

Added to 3.4 Instance, not yet deployed to life.