Description

Current behaviour:

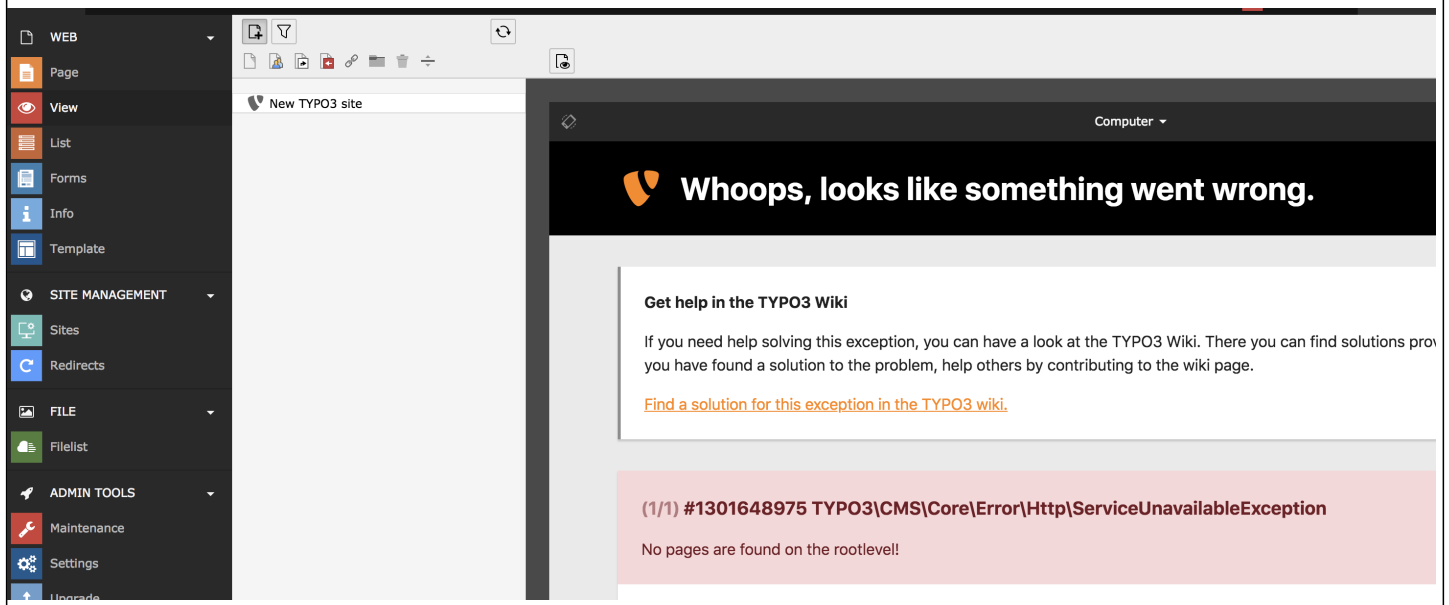

- If clicking the root page (id=0) in the view module and there is no Page with is_siteroot Field set, an `ServiceUnavailableException` is thrown with the Message: No pages are found on the rootlevel!
- Furthermore, in the case that a Page with is_siteroot Field set exists under the root page (id=0), the view module displays this Page while actually the root page was selected. This is very confusing.

Steps to reproduce:

- Set up clean TYPO3 9.5 installation (or set all pages deleted=1)
- Click in the view module and select the root page (id=0) in the page tree

Would expect:

- See an information not an Exception
- See the selected page not a other page only because it's marked as siteroot

[BUGFIX] Display FlashMessage in View Module

When clicking on the root page while in view module a FlashMessage is now displayed with proper information. The FlashMessage is also shown in the case of clicking the root page and a Page, marked as siteroot, exists. Furthermore the FlashMessage is now also shown if the selected page has no valid doktype e.g. sysfolder or spacer.
