Description

Given is a record in an own extension with a slug field.

The TCA configuration is as follows:

```
'path_segment' => [
    'label' => 'Path segment',
    'exclude' => true,
    'config' => [
        'type' => 'slug',
        'generatorOptions' => [
            'fields' => ['title'],
            'fieldSeparator' => '/',
            'prefixParentPageSlug' => false,
        ],
        'fallbackCharacter' => '-',
        'eval' => 'uniqueInPid',
    ],
],
```

Clicking on the button for recalculating the slug throws an exception (see attachment).

The same exception occurs when saving the record. So it's not possible anymore to save a record!

I am using a multi-lingual single-page tree (I don't know if this is relevant).

I can reproduce the error in the news extension.

It seems to me that this is a regression related to the fix for bug #86195.

@Chris, there came a bugfix <https://forge.typo3.org/issues/86809>.

Could you try to load dev version (TYPO3 9.5.2-dev) and test, if its solve the issue for you?

#5 - 2018-11-05 10:40 - Chris Müller

After applying the patch from <https://forge.typo3.org/projects/typo3cms-core/repository/revisions/3f182270333509171c3029cdf1969b8a559417bc> I got still an error.

Argument 2 passed to TYPO3\CMS\Core\DataHandling\SlugHelper::buildSlugForUniqueInPid() must be an instance of TYPO3\CMS\Core\DataHandling\Model\RecordState, instance of TYPO3\CMS\Core\DataHandling\Model\RecordStateFactory given, called in /var/www/html/public/typo3/sysext/core/Classes/DataHandling/DataHandler.php on line 2006
