Description

When the language fallback chain is configured in a site's language, the "Default language" is always moved to the first position after opening and / or saving the record.

When the item "Default language" is moved onto another position, the defined order is saved correctly, but the "Default language" spawns at the first position again in the form field.

#1 - 2019-04-17 22:36 - Benni Mack

- Status changed from New to Needs Feedback

This is a formengine thing... It actually sorts it wrong.

#2 - 2019-10-21 22:48 - Riccardo De Contardi

Still present on 10.2.0

Steps to reproduce it

Prerequisites

- 1) A "Site Configuration
- 2) Three languages, in my example

- Italian (Default)
- English (2)
- French (3)

fully configured

Execution

- 1) Go to site configuration > Languages > open for example "English
- 2) set a "Fallback to other Language(s) - order is important![[fallback]]" in this way:

- French (3)
- Italian (Default)

- 3) Save it
- 4) Reopen the site configuration and look again at the same list of fallbacks

Expected result:

the list order is maintained:

- French (3)
- Italian (Default)

Actual result

The Default language appears first:

- Italian (Default)
- French (3)

This change breaks the behaviour in TYPO3 v8.7. It "remove all items from the current DB values".
