Description
An editor has a language restriction set. The usergroup has no access to page (edit). If double click on page tree the change is blocked. If double click in oage view and "default" selected as language the changes are saved. This breaks default titles, urls and many other things the editors should not be able to edit. Tested in 7.6 and 8.7.

[BUGFIX] Set `hasErrors` depending on existing errors

The bugfix for #87971 assumes that every requesting hitting SimpleDataHandlerController without setting `prErr` explicitly is erroneous. This assumption is not correct per se, thus this patch now checks DataHandler's error log whether there is really an error.

Could not reproduce security aspects here. In TYPO3 v7 I did not find any inline editing in page module (see initial report for TYPO3 v7 and v8). In TYPO3 v8 the error message is just not shown. Thus it looks like that works, but is actually not persisted...

Please double check, if not reproducible, it will be put back to public tracker to get SimpleDataHandlerController::processAjaxRequest fixed concerning prErr in order to show error messages...

- Affected Version set to v7

Okay, I could now reproduce it in TYPO3 v7 (legacy, public branch), but still not in TYPO3 v8...

Fixed with <https://typo3.org/security/advisory/typo3-core-sa-2019-003/> for maintained versions at that time. Was fixed in TYPO3 v7 ELTS, see <https://typo3.com/products/extended-support> for details.

#14 - 2019-04-25 13:11 - Oliver Hader

@Felix Herrmann please make sure to update to recent TYPO3 v8 versions. For TYPO3 v7 please refer to my previous comment and the ELTS program of TYPO3 GmbH. Thx

The change of line 253 to

```
if ($this->prErr || $this->prErr === null) {

actually breaks drag&drop of content elements with grid elements: <https://gitlab.com/coderscare/gridelements/issues/35>

$content['hasErrors']

becomes true and thus the page is not reloaded (typo3conf/ext/gridelements/Resources/Public/JavaScript/GridElementsDragDrop.js:310 @dev_8-7)

This also affects TYPO3 installations without gridelements installed.
