Description

TYPO3 supports both "connected" and "free" mode for the translation of page content.

If for some reason it happens, that the page translation is in mixed mode (both connected and free mode records exist for this translation), the "Translate" button is still clickable but the wizard won't show a clickable option.

In such a case TYPO3 should show a message in the wizard overlay that explains, why using the translation wizard is not possible in mixed mode.

-> See screenshot for the current behaviour. An empty wizard will open with no option to go further, which looks confusing to the editor.

[TASK] Tell reason why translation wizard is not usable in "mixed mode"

When clicking the "translate" button for a page translation, that has "mixed mode" records, an empty wizard would be shown with no indication what is wrong.

An alert message is now added, that explains the reason why the translation wizard cannot be used in "free mode".
