[!!!][TASK] Rework shortcut PHP API functionality

To be able to introduce URL rewrites for the backend, the internal handling and registration of the shortcut PHP API is reworked.

The Shortcut PHP API previously has the full URL of the shortcut target stored in the database. This lead to many problems such as shortcuts got invalid as soon as their target module changed its route path. Furthermore, this required unnecessary functionality like replacing tokens on URL creation.

Therefore, a shortcut record now stores only the route identifier of the module to link to and necessary arguments in two new database columns. A upgrade wizard is in place to migrate existing data.

The rework also required to deprecate some methods in the ShortcutButton API and a parameter signature change of the JavaScript function `TYPO3.ShortcutMenu.createShortcut()` which performs the AJAX call to create new shortcuts.

Side effect, this also deprecated the last remains of `xMOD_alt_doc.php` in the core.
