Description
Hi there, at the moment, the slughelper converts both dash and lodash to the fallback character - typo3/sysex/core/Classes/DataHandling/SlugHelper.php:115 <pre>// Convert some special tokens (space, "_" and "-") to the space character $fallbackCharacter = (string) ($this->configuration['fallbackCharacter'] ?? '-'); $slug = preg_replace('/[\t\x{00A0}\-+_]+/u', $fallbackCharacter, $slug);</pre>
is converted to:
Since both Characters are valid for urls, it would be good if there would be at least the option to keep these characters, so that the result would be

Forget to note here ... I worked on it to .. but as you wrote in general/general in discord, and I'm in remote sprint/general did not see it.

I'm ready to push a patch, done the work with tests .. wrote in discord.

Should i push mine ? or how should we solve this "double work conflict" ?

Go ahead and push yours. I will compare your solution with mine.

Is it possible to extend the official support for this feature to typo3 10 and 11?

Based on this patch, I created a patch file for TYPO3 version 10. Maybe it will be of use to someone.

@eric as we are talking about a feature here the chances are really small to get the permission for a backport. The policy is clear, no features are backported normally.
